What is the Mobiliy of Trump's Focus on Twitter?

This static visual, when combined with the interactive visual, comes to the connclusion that while Trump does have multiple focuses, the majority of his tweets revolve around "Donald", "Trump," Democrats, or his presidential platofrms.

Broad Overview

The majority of Trump tweets cite his supporters, followed by his presidential platforms

This frequency is skewed due to the large majority of his tweets citing "Trump," and less frequently, "Donald."

Topics like "America," "Hillary," "Dems," and "Fake News" also have high frequencies.

Topic List

Platforms: Military, Gun, Crime, Border, Wall, Immigration, Economy, Jobs, Trade, Court, America, ISIS
Attacks: Collusion, Mueller, Witch, FBI, Fake News
News: CNN, NBC, CBS, FOX, PRESS
Places: Israel, Washington, Europe, Russia, Puerto, China, California, Virginia
Opponents: Hillary, Obama, Bernie, Pelosi, Schumer, Biden, DNC, Dems
Supporters: Republicans, Mitch, Paul, Hannity, Donald, Trump, Pence

Interactive Filter

Filters tweets based upon day of the week and time of day.

| All | Monday | Tuesday | Wednesday | Thursday | Friday | Saturday | Sunday | Apply Filter |

Midnight   6:00 AM   Noon   6:00 PM   Midnight

Step Backward   Play   Step Forward

Weekend   Weekday

This graph shows the difference between weekday topic frequency and weekend topic frequency.

There is little difference in topic frequency, suggesting that day of the week has little impact of the mobility of trump's tweets

A time of day filter, best seen through the interactive visual due to the larger amount of permutations, came to a similar conclusion: the filter has little effect on what topic trump tweets about.